

SLA SF BAY REGION CHAPTER

& BAYNET Bay Area Library and Information Network

Joint Event

What: George Oates of the Internet Archive: What is an Open Library?

When: Tuesday, February 2, 2010

Where: Berkeley City Club, 2315 Durant Avenue, Berkeley, CA 94704.
<http://berkeleycityclub.com>. (510) 848-7800.

The web allows libraries to describe and expose their collections in unprecedented ways. George Oates, head of the Internet Archive's Open Library project, will explore some of the exciting benefits that placing books into a network affords us as she outlines the upcoming redesign of the openlibrary.org web site.

Oates is an award-winning, world-renowned web designer. A member of the founding team that built Flickr, she is fascinated by collaboration, organic information systems and virtual society. After creating the innovative Commons program (flickr.com/commons) as a way for institutions around the world to share their photographic collections on Flickr, she now finds herself ensconced in the world of librarianship, heading up the Open Library project (openlibrary.org) at the Internet Archive (archive.org).

SLA-SF will also present awards to its 2009 recipients: Jaye Lapachet (Professional Achievement Award), Linda Yamamoto (Special Projects Award), and Anne Hall (Horizon Award).
